As senior media consultant for the United Nations Development Program (UNDP) 2004-2005, at Miftah – The Palestinian Initiative for the Promotion of Global Dialogue and Democracy, in Ramallah and Jerusalem, part of the UNDP Program of Assistance to the Palestinian People (Transfer of Knowledge), I helped develop an in-house code of ethics, an editorial line and editorial guidelines for the organization’s media and information program, restructuring the organization’s website and establishing journalistic and scholarly standards and credibility, and worked as an advisor on several freedom-of-expression-related issues and media monitoring projects, including the Palestinian Presidential Election Campaign Coverage, sponsored by the Council of Europe; and Incitement, Bias, and De-humanization of the Other in Israeli and Palestinian Media, sponsored by the European Union and in cooperation with Keshev, the Center for the Protection of Democracy in Israel. I also worked at Miftah as an editor, researcher, and writer. Furthermore, I introduced and structured daily editorial meetings and improved access and updating mechanisms for the Miftah website. Aside from scores of news items, press releases, information briefings to visiting delegations and individuals (diplomats, journalists, activists), press conferences and selecting and summarizing headline stories, I also regularly wrote lead editorials – ‘Perspectives’ and ‘Spotlights’ – as well as various special reports and independent articles (see Publications and Editorship above).

At the International Press Institute (IPI), 1994-2004, I was in charge of press freedom- and media monitoring-related human rights work; research, documentation, publications, and consultation for and coordination with several UN, EU, and other agencies. Research and Documentation projects included: IPI Intifada Report: Press Freedom Violations in Israel and Palestine (2000-2004); Caught in the Crossfire: The Iraq War and the Media (financed and published by the Reuters Foundation in 2003); Media Ethics Code for the Former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia (2001-2002); Independent News Agencies in Central and Eastern Europe (1998-2000, financed by the Freedom Forum, the World Press Freedom Committee, and ProMedia-IREX). I coordinated action with other non-governmental organizations: Committee to Protect Journalists, International Federation of Journalists, Reporters sans Frontières, European Institute for the Media, Alliance of Independent Press Councils in Europe, International PEN; and inter-governmental organizations: Council of Europe, Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe, United Nations Development Program, United Nations Educational Scientific and Cultural Organization, and United Nations High Commissariat for Refugees. Also at IPI, I was responsible for the organization of, contributions to, presentations and attendance at seminars, conferences, and congresses; speechwriting for director and chairpersons. I was co-organizer of the 1999 International Press Institute conference in Bratislava, Slovakia, on ‘Independent News Agencies in Central and Eastern Europe’ (<https://ipi.media/independent-news-agencies-in-central-and-eastern-europe-forge-alliance/>) and of the 2003 International Press Institute World Congress in Salzburg.

At Webster Vienna, I was the main organizer of the sixth international Media Trends conference in Vienna, on the theme of ‘Power and the Media: Ownership, Sponsorship, Censorship’, at the Media Communications Department, Webster Vienna Private University, September 10-12, 2015, see <https://mediatrends2015.sched.org/>. Previously I co-organized the third, fourth and fifth Media Trends conferences in Geneva (2012-2014). I am currently preparing for a conference with the working title: ‘Truth, Media, and Culture’, to be held at Webster Vienna Private University in 2022.

Teaching

My philosophy of teaching is based on the idea that knowledge and understanding can and should be shared, spread and improved. As a teacher, I am in a hierarchic relationship with my students and owe them respect, care and leadership. Although I evaluate and rank their performance, I strongly emphasize the class as an interactive learning community, in which equality of dignity and rights prevail. Therefore, I welcome the converse opportunity for students to rank me against my colleagues. I strive to inspire students, to be a role model, and to be there for them.

Knowledge and understanding, in my opinion, will very likely benefit humankind and the biosphere, and as a researcher I wish to contribute to Karl Popper's World 3, the world of objective knowledge. If I can also contribute to others contributing to World 3, then that is an even greater service. I see my students as people who will ideally share, spread and improve knowledge and understanding, and as people who otherwise will contribute to the benefit of humankind and the biosphere, with regard especially to human rights, cultural diversity, and biodiversity.

Teaching communications to me also entails engendering relevant, accurate, balanced, and objective knowledge as well as facilitating the students' identifying and communicating meanings despite disagreement and uncertainty; students encountering and relating with unknown others and unfamiliar, uncertain issues, and students analyzing, making judgements in context, and acting across diverse genres of inclusive agency in the political public sphere, ranging from grassroots activism to interactive and deliberative processes in formal political bodies.
